TCHAIKOVSKY COMPETITION

'At the Saint-Petersburg gala concert that lasted until 1:30 am under the white night, Alexandre Kantorow was declared the over-all Grand Prix winner. It was the first time that a non-Russian was awarded the first prize in piano since Ayako Uehara in 2002, and the audience roared into a raucous applause,' Ken Iisaka reports from the competition in our upcoming edition of the World of Piano Competitions. And read the interview with Alexandre Kantorow in Pianist 2019/1, Dutch edition.
